Ike To Offer U.N. Africa Aid Plan, Air Peace Patrol

NEW YORK (AP) — President Eisenhower will offer a vast new plan for African aid and suggest a U.N. aerial peace patrol when he addresses the United Nations Thursday, the New York Herald Tribune reported today.

The newspaper's lead story said specific proposals in the speech draft cast the world organization in a starring role in contrast with recent Soviet efforts to circumvent the United Nations.

The President, it said, will urge that the United Nations be given greater responsibility than ever in a wide range of affairs, in what amounts to a vote of confidence in the U.N.

The newspaper article describes the program as something in "preventive diplomacy" — designed to have help ready to keep any situation from getting out of hand instead of rushing in and after a situation already has become critical.

The New York Times also reported on President Eisenhower's speech, saying that he would renew his "open skies" proposal first suggested at the Geneva summit conference in 1955. The Soviet rejected it then.

The New York Daily News carried a similar story.

The Herald Tribune said it has learned the United States has two ideas on the U.N. role in an "open skies" plan for guarding the world against surprise attack by sending up high-altitude reconnaissance planes.

The airplanes could be flown by pilots recruited by the U.N. and answerable to it. Or the planes could be flown by non-U.N. pilots but under some form of U.N. supervision.

In either case, the United States is prepared to donate the aircraft to be used.

Though no price tag has been placed on a plan for economic aid to Africa, officials see it as a big plan—perhaps as large as the recent $500 million proposed by the United States for raising living standards in Latin America.

Other proposals concerning Africa would: let new nations train their own troops through U.N. arrangements; administer the United States' "food for peace" plan through the U.N. instead of through bilateral agreements between Washington and other countries; turn over some uranium-235 to underdeveloped nations in Africa and elsewhere to help build useful energy for industrial purposes.

Kennedy Says U.S. Can't Wait For Red Moves

Dem Urges Nation Act 'First and Fast'; Nixon Calls Jack Naive

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy says the next president must act first and fast to strengthen the cause of peace—and cannot merely wait for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's next move.

Pledging he would follow such a course if elected, the democratic nominee Tuesday night told a coast-to-coast television audience of the steps he would take "first and fast" to meet the Communist challenge.

In doing so, Kennedy rejected the call of his Republican rival, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, for a moratorium on talk of American weakness and for solid backing of President Eisenhower while Khrushchev is in the country for the United Nations General Assembly.

Nixon, on tour in the Midwest, meanwhile declared that Kennedy was naive about the Communist mind and asserted that the Democratic candidate was beholden to big labor unions.

The Republican candidate then renewed his appeal for rank and file labor votes, saying that "the president of the United States has to be for all the people and then must belong to no one group 100 per cent. I feel it to be my responsibility to stand for what is best for all Americans — union members and non-union members alike."

Speaking at a $100-a-plate Democratic rally where 1,300 diners cheered him again and again, (Continued on Page 2)

BEAR HUG FROM KHRUSHCHEV — Russia's Nikita Khrushchev hugs Cuba's Fidel Castro with gusto in front of delegates in the United Nations. Although they had met hours earlier in a Harlem hotel, they embraced again before the start of the crucial 15th general assembly.

New York Tense As Chiefs Parley

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations moved toward debate today on the cold war's deadliest issues while violence raged in New York streets. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev was the target of two fierce demonstrations.

Mounted police charged one crowd. Night sticks were used on another. Howling men and women retaliated, hurling eggs and firecrackers.

Persons who said they were Poles, Hungarians, Yugoslavs, Greeks, Albanians and anti-Castro Cubans swarmed through the streets. They clustered around Khrushchev's Park Avenue residence, Fidel Castro's hotel in Harlem, and the Yugoslav headquarters where President Tito is staying.

Temperatures were fraying and the atmosphere was ominous in New York.

It was against this background that the General Assembly began the second day of its deliberations — a day in which issues dividing the East and West were to come up for consideration.

The agenda for this 15th session is the heaviest in the Assembly's history, with 87 proposed subjects for discussion.

Some are listed simply as "Question of Hungary," and "Question of Tibet." Both were the scenes of bloody uprisings, one against the Soviets, the second against the Communist Chinese.

The United States has placed the item on Hungary on the provisional list of topics. The Federation of Malaya proposed the discussion of the events in Tibet.

The Soviet Union in turn has proposed that the Assembly deliberate the problems of the Congo, the seating of Communist China in the U.N. and the "menace to world peace created by the aggressive actions of the United States of America"—probably based on the U2 case and the shooting down of the RB47, an American plane.

The Soviets also sponsored perhaps the biggest and most disputed issue of all—disarmament. All 87 items are merely subjects proposed for discussion. The 21 member steering committee of the Assembly must approve before they go on the agenda for formal discussion.

The admission of 14 new nations added an element of uncertainty as to how the voting may go. They were 13 African republics and the newly created Republic of Cyprus.

The list brings U. N. membership to 96, nearly twice the original 51 members of 1945.

It is believed that one of Khrushchev's purposes in coming to this session of the U.N. is to try his salesmanship on the new members, especially the representatives of the African governments.

During the opening session of the Assembly, he made himself highly conspicuous. He shook hands, posed for photographers, waved to other Communist delegations.

Then he rose from his chair, walked across the width of the great hall, and warmly shook hands with Castro. The Soviet and Cuban delegations are far apart in the seating arrangements.

He personally went to the rostrum to cast the Soviet ballot in the voting for president, which put Ireland's Frederick H. Boland in the chair.

One by one, the representatives of the 82 delegations filed up and dropped a ballot.

The result was a Soviet defeat — 46 votes for Boland to 23 for Soviet-backed Jiri Nosek of Czechoslovakia, and 9 for Thor Thors of Iceland.

Voters Begin To Register Tomorrow

Water Shutoff Due Tonight

Water will be shut off for a short time tonight in one section of the city due to emergency valve repairs, water department head Ervin F. Leist announced today.

Leist said the section east of Court St. from High St. south to Union St. will be affected. He said the shutoff is due at about 10 p. m. and will last approximately two hours.

He said the stoppage is due to needed replacement of valves at McCrea Ave. and Main St. and at Mingo and Main. He said a bad leak has cropped up at McCrea and Main and that a valve at Mingo at Main is not in working condition.

Leist said the work should be completed on schedule providing no rain is encountered.

Conservancy Unit Tries New Plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Mayor W. Ralston Westlake of Columbus is asking commissioners of Franklin, Pickaway, Pike, Ross, Scioto and Vinton counties to help salvage something from the floundering Scioto - Sandusky Conservancy District.

He thinks a smaller, more effective district can be formed from these six counties, and he got partial and unofficial support at a meeting here Tuesday.

The 17-county Scioto-Sandusky district was created in 1934, and its critics say nothing much in the way of flood control has been accomplished since. It has been close to going under since the county common pleas judges—who make up the district's conservancy court—voted in 1958 to dissolve the district.

Four lawsuits oppose such a move, and briefs are due next Wednesday in the 10th District Court of Appeals.

Although hesitant at first, representatives from Franklin, Pickaway, Ross and Scioto counties agreed Tuesday to this plan:

1. Try to obtain a resolution from each of the six county boards of commissioners, declaring intent to form a new district upon dissolution of the present one, and to use their share of district funds for the new district.

2. Ask Oct. 1 for dismissal of the legal actions which seek to continue the present district.

3. Immediately file a request to form the new six-county district.

One reason for the hesitancy is concern that a series of legal entanglements may face any attempt to use $321,154 from taxes raised in the present district. There also is concern that Delaware County—which reportedly feels it has enough dams—might oppose any new district that conceivably could insist on more dams there, even though Delaware would not be a member.

Local officials think Pike and Vinton counties—not represented Tuesday—will go along with the plan.

Columbus City Attorney Russell Leach and attorneys for the present district agreed to postpone legal action to dissolve it, pending official approval of the proposed six-county district.

Leach said he will not try to sell the plan to county commissioners, but merely send them material—in the next week or so—saying: "If this is what you want, here is how you may be able to get it."

If the plan is successful representatives Tuesday said, the 1961 legislature could be asked to authorize returning present district funds to the new district and individually to counties that would withdraw.

Judges of the present district met in Columbus Sept. 9, but could agree on no action.

5 Prisoners Escape from Newark Jail

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Five prisoners awaiting transfer to Ohio Penitentiary sawed their way out of Licking County jail Tuesday night. Two of them were caught by daybreak and a third was nabbed in Canton about 10 hours after the escape.

All five had been sentenced to penitentiary terms in Common Pleas Court on Monday.

Robert B. Hoffee, 31, of Dellroy, Carroll County, and Milton P. Schneider, 20, of Canton, had achieved notoriety in July when they staged several tavern hold-ups in central and northeast Ohio. They were known as the "closing time bandits" because they chose that time for their work. Later they were charged with kidnapping and threatening Curt Kuhn, town marshal of Granville.

Hoffee was caught at a Canton bus terminal. He had parked a stolen truck there and police were watching the terminal on a tip that he would meet a friend there.

Schneider was recaptured about 6 a. m. today in Frazeyburg, Muskingum County, 16 miles east of here. Also free only a short time was William Merritt, 22, of Mansfield, who was picked up about 6:15 a. m. on a downtown street after telephoning police to surrender.

Sill at large are Albert Bradford, 20, of West Lafayette, Coshocton County, and Erwin E. Wolford, 20, also of Coshocton County.

County, City Divisions Set For Fund Kick-Off Monday

While Business, Industry and Special Groups go about their Pickaway County Community Fund business this week, the Residential and County Divisions are preparing for next week's all-out campaign.

Heading up the important divisions are Lawrence Reid and Frank Bowling Jr. for the county, and Mrs. L. S. Mader and Mrs. Walter Heine, for the city residential group.

Today is the third day of the two-week campaign. Goal for the drive is $32,300. Six agencies depend on the PCCF to provide funds for their operations.

The six fund agencies are the Salvation Army, Youth Canteen, Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and the new Well - Child Clinic. Without the all-in-one campaign, the six agencies would have to either er curtain or halt operations. Last year more than 3,100 persons in the county took advantage of fund agency services.

MRS. L. S. MADER

MRS. WALTER F. HEINE

MOMENTUM of the campaign is picking up with solicitors of the three kick-off divisions trying to make all their calls before the weekend.

Business, Industry and Special Groups Divisions will give contributors window stickers, to be placed in the prominent spot at their homes. If this is done, Residential and County solicitors will not make calls at those places displaying window stickers.

The County Divisions is broken down into, township and community areas. Reid has certain portions of the county to cover while Bowling takes the balance.

Residential Division, under the over-all direction of Mrs. Heine and Mrs. Mader, also is broken down into areas. Mrs. Mader is in charge of the northern half of the city, while Mrs. Heine is in charge of the southern portion.

100 Per Cent For the Fund

Each day during the 1960 Pickaway County Community Fund campaign, The Circleville Herald will publish the names of those businesses where every employee has given to the PCCF.

Today's 100 per cent centers are:

Ike, Foreign Chiefs To Talk

Khrushchev Meeting Unlikely; Castro Out

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today decided to say overnight in New York Thursday so that he can talk with some of the government leaders attending the session of the United Nations general assembly.

In announcing this, the White House declined to say what foreign visitors might meet with the President.

However, there was no indication that Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev would be on the list.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty has repeatedly said there were no plans for an Eisenhower-Khrushchev meeting.

Eisenhower's decision to remain in New York overnight came atop an earlier announcement that he would have a luncheon tomorrow in New York for representatives of 18 Latin American countries.

Eisenhower is going to New York to address a forenoon session of the United Nations.

Originally the President had planned to return to Washington after the forenoon.

If Eisenhower does not see Khrushchev, the omission may be regarded as a snub to the Soviet premier who withdrew an invitation for Eisenhower to visit the Soviet Union this summer.

Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro is not being asked to the luncheon for Latin Americans.

Castro is the highest-ranking official of a Latin-American government at the assembly session but neither he nor any other Cuban official was invited to Eisenhower's luncheon.

The Dominican Republic also excluded, but Hagerty pointed out that the United States has broken diplomatic relations with that nation.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—No words, however tender, can take away the pain that comes from losing a child.

But if they come from the heart, words can do the next best thing. They let those who grieve know that others grieve with them, and that they hope for something in time, akin to healing.

So it is with Almeta and Albert Kunkle, who live in the town of Ephrata, Lancaster county liked The Kunkles lost their son, Paul, 10, in an automobile accident on Labor Day.

The Kunkles are well-liked. It was to be expected that they should get many letters of condolence.

But one letter came which was indeed a surprise. It is a letter Mrs. Kunkle reads over and over. She draws comfort from it. H heart warms to the busy, high-placed couple who sent it. She is especially grateful to the woman who wrought into the letter her own sorrow over a similar loss.

It was Mrs. David Lawrence, wife of Pennsylvania's governor, who wrote it.

"The governor and I were greatly distressed to read of the tragedy that has come to you, and we want you to know you have our deepest sympathy," the letter says.

"Because we lost two of our boys in an auto accident, we realize how very difficult it will be for you to accept the fact that Paul was taken from you at such an early age. Mere words are most inadequate to express our feeling for you at this time.

"However, you are in our thoughts and we pray God may give you the strength and courage you need to endure these dark days."

To the Kunkles, the Lawrences are no longer remote figures in a remote mansion. They are all good neighbors together now for they have sorrowed as one.

Ever since a shattering night in April 1942 when the Lawrences learned that two of their sons—one 13, the other 16—had been killed, Mrs. Lawrence has been writing letters of sympathy to parents who have lost children in any kind of accident.

She makes each letter personal. There are many letters every week, every month.

Lawrence and his wife were entertaining friends in their Pittsburgh home when the telephone rang that night over 18 years ago. He took the call. After what seemed an eternity of trying to compose himself, he turned and said "Alyce, our boys are gone."

Rarely does he talk about it. But he shares his wife's feeling that the grief of one afflicted family touches all families so bereft.

He has given Pennsylvania one of the nation's most vigorous traffic safety programs, and on the subject of careful driving he is a tireless and passionate speaker.

Constitution - Nearly Perfect

This week is the 173rd anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States - the most perfect document yet written by men for the government of men.

The Constitution is a living document. It has been the protection and the guiding light of free men ever since its adoption that September, 1787.

There is no governmental charter in the world which comes as close as the U. S. Constitution to true justice. Autocracy or oligarchy can come in the United States only when free men surrender the rights given to them in that document. If the United States has not achieved the full promise that it holds it is not the fault of the Constitution - rather it is that the Constitution has not been followed in its true spirit.

It is not essential that Americans give reverence to the Constitution. It is essential that they recognize it as their own individual charter of freedom, to protect it and defend it, for their own sake and their children's.

Well-Planned Dinner Party

By FRANCIS STILLEY (For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) - For weeks you've been planning the party. The three couples you enjoy the most said they'd be delighted to come for dinner and a spate of gabbing afterward.

The day before the long-awaited gathering, your good wife trudges in $28.60 worth of vittles and whatnot.

She's pretty nervous about it all because she wants to serve what she deems her best dishes. But she has to reckon with the fact that one of the guests can't eat certain things, and a second has additional taboos.

It all gets a little more complicated because each of the guests prefers a different type of cocktail before dinner.

This requires another outlay of considerable proportions—with the expectation that a lot of leftover stuff will sit on the shelf for many a moon afterward.

Finally, the good hostess gets all the details worked out.

Then she sets to work. She scrubs and cleans the house like it was spring. She polishes the silver. She borrows glassware from the neighbor. She sets her hair. She cooks.

K Presents Security Problem

The United States will experience for the first time the appearance within its borders of unwanted heads of states, some of whom are regarded by the American people as enemies.

Khrushchev, Kadar, Nasser, Tito and Fidel Castro will head their delegations at the General Assembly of the United Nations. Why is it that they all come at the same time? Who suggested that a grandiose conference of heads of states meet in New York? Why was not the State Department asked whether it would be convenient?

Already the United States has reacted to this by limiting the visits of Khrushchev and Kadar to Manhattan Island where the United Nations is situated. Khrushchev may find this limitation unbragable, but our government is well within its rights as the agreements concerning the United Nations only provide that those having business with that body have access to it. We do not need to give them free access to the United States, particularly during a Presidential campaign.

The problem of security, in this connection, is a very real one. There are undoubtedly many persons in the United States who would like to kill Khrushchev and Kadar and even Nasser. The police in New York will face a very serious technical problem of protecting the lives of these unpopular personalities.

The enormous population of New York City is fragmented into large groups of persons whose prior nationality makes them particularly visitors. Our citizens of Hungarian origin must regard Kadar as a traitor just as those of Ukrainian origin regard Khrushchev as a murderer.

Khrushchev has undoubtedly called a disarmament conference of his own at the United Nations without consulting anyone. He assumes that if all these heads of states whom he has asked are present, the United States, particularly its President, must attend such a conference of Khrushchev chosen delegates. Otherwise, Khrushchev will choose an American President who will do his bidding! This is crazy thinking. Apparently he can't keep out of our Presidential campaign.

When the United Nations was established in 1945, it had 51 members; of these 51, only 15 were African and Asian nations. It is now estimated that by the end of this year, the total membership of the United Nations will be 99 but the African and Asiatic membership will increase to 50. In a word, the African and Asian nations will have a majority.

The shift of power is rapidly moving to give nations with a Soviet affiliation or sympathy a greater vote than they have ever had. It is estimated that by the end of 1962, out of a total membership of 106, the African and Asiatic members will be 58. It could well be that by 1962, the Communists will have an absolute majority in the United Nations.

Proponents of the United Nations make the point that African and Asiatic nations do not always vote together, that they are not harmonious and that they will not form a block. However, while we are gazing into the future, why not ask, suppose out of the dissatisfied and discontented nations in Asia, Africa and Latin America, a bloc is formed to squeeze the United States, what will our policy have to be then?

The attitude adopted by many of these countries is that the United States should underwrite their economies as the United States has enriched European countries since World War II. The United Nations permits the United States to pay the largest share of the costs of its operations - all out of proportion to what should be our responsibility.

Much of this was foreseen when the United Nations was brought to the United States. It may be recalled that originally the plan was to establish a rather large area which would become an extra-territorial enclave within this country. Finally, the Rockefeller family collected the property on the East River in New York City, a reason-

Views on Television - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) - The idea behind "The Datchet Diamonds," Tuesday night's NBC Hour of Great Mysteries obviously was to take a vintage mystery novel, turn it into a television farce and let two skilled performers—Rex Harrison and Tammy Grimes—give it a whirl.

But somewhere between adapter Walter Kerr and director Gower Champion the plot became fatally afflicted with cuteness. Even the best efforts of the stars couldn't lighten what was basically a heavy-handed treatment.

The only thing that was feather-light was the plot: Ne'er-do-well Cyril Paxton, acquired, in the usual luggage mixup, a satchel of stolen diamonds. As a consequence he became equally beset by the real thieves and Scotland Yard. But all this was incidental to burlesquing Victorian mores and manners while lacing the action with such low comedy touches as the sounds of plumbing and bashing the hero over the head with a bottle.

Television so far has not been kind to Rex Harrison, a superb light comedian. And I believe Tammy Grimes is a much more talented comedienne than viewers have had any reason to suspect to date.

It's too bad that serious music lovers of the nation aren't as lucky as the armchair adventurers. Every year these travel talk buffs have a weekly half-hour show handtailed to their television taste—on ABC and invariably sponsored by the same cereal manufacturer.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) - "Just give your name, rank and serial number."

This instruction to soldiers if captured by an enemy, to avoid disclosure of vital information, was followed pretty much Monday by Premier Nikita Khrushchev who wasn't captured but landed in unfriendly country.

The round Russian, as soon as he reached New York for today's session of the United Nations Assembly, whipped out a 1,500-word prepared statement and began reading on the dock beside the ship which brought him.

When he was through he hadn't really disclosed much. He gave his name and rank. But the rest of what he said was simply a re-statement of what was already known: he wanted to talk disarmament.

What else he'll try to do he kept to himself. The fact that he is accompanied by the Communist chieftains of all the Russian satellites indicates the pitch he makes in the United Nations will be out of the ordinary.

Khrushchev, who insulted President Eisenhower last May in the breakup of the summit conference, took another swipe at him but still left the door open for them to get together in New York.

He said that if Eisenhower - scheduled to address the U.N.

Thursday—doesn't make a "fancy speech" but wants to talk serious about disarmament and peace, that's all to the good.

He seemed to be cold-shouldering the President when he then went on to say "I would like to voice the profound respect I feel toward the entire American people."

He could have paid this tribute to Eisenhower and the American people. But he didn't mention the President in this expression of feeling of "profound respect."

Earlier this year Khrushchev was on a campaign of belittlement of Eisenhower who now shows no intention of having direct dealings with the Russian again.

Last June 3 he said that when Eisenhower leaves the White House "we could make him an orphanage director: 'I am sure he will not hurt the children.' The same day he referred to the President as "weak-kneed."

Since more than 20 heads of foreign governments will be at the United Nations this week—giving Khrushchev the greatest world forum he has ever enjoyed—he can be counted on to make the most of it.

Although he repudiated in his dock-side speech the idea he was coming here to make Soviet propaganda, his every move and word will be just that, no matter how good his intentions.

It will probably take two weeks to find out why Khrushchev really came here. The two weeks may become a propaganda circus.

Roaring Irish Playwright Has Not-So-Mousy Wife

By JOY MILLER

AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) - Yes, there is a Mrs. Brendan Behan.

But she's not the mousy little woman you might expect to find married to a roaring Irishman like the playwright of "The Hostage."

Beatrice Behan is a slim, dark-haired girl with a twinkle in her gray-blue eyes and an easy manner that's sometimes devastating in its matter-of-factness. She is as offhand about her husband's past peccadilloes as she is unimpressed by the flurry over his play opening tonight on Broadway.

"But it's a terribly entertaining play," she says. "The English loved it, in spite of the digs. Americans will get a few digs too. We'll see how they like it."

Five years ago they were married: Beatrice French-Salkeld from one of Ireland's prominent families, daughter of a well-known Dublin artist and a painter herself; Behan an ebullient housepainter with a flair for words, drinking bouts and getting jailed for outlawed Irish Republican Army activity.

It's a happy marriage, she says. "We've had our ups and downs, but everyone has that. He's very agreeable, very entertaining. Of course, he gets excited over things, and sometimes I get the backwash of it. I understand it. He always says later he's sorry, that he has to let off steam."

She is glad Brendan's on the wagon now because he feels so much better. But maybe they'd never have met if he had been a sober youth.

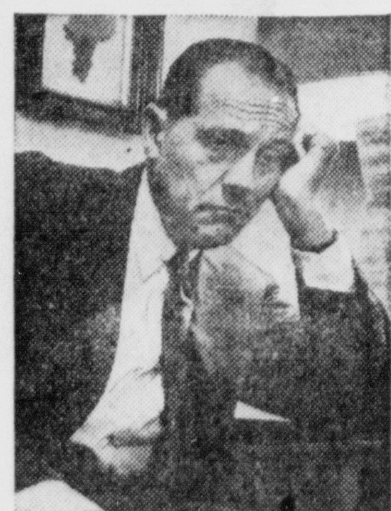

"It was back in the '40s," she recalls. "I was 17, still a school-girl, and he was 20 and just out of jail, painting a pub. My father is also fond of the gangle, and he met Brendan at the pub. The two drank until it closed, then father brought him home. I remember he didn't seem drunk, just quiet. He says I was very impolite to him. He had a moustache at the time. He always denies it, but he had."

Did romance blossom then?

"Oh, he was in jail for the next four or five years. Later we met again at parties. He took me to the races in December. We were married in February 1955 and went to Paris on our honeymoon. It was very cold, but still we had a very good time."

They came back to a Dublin flat, where he wrote "The Quare Fellow." It was a success in London's East End, but in the important West End it lasted two months.

"The Hostage" was written in Gaelic in 12 days while they were living in Spain's Balearic Islands. "Brendan hates winters at home." This time his play was a West End success with a year's run.

Women's Club Dedicates Tree to Mrs. Ray Davis

Junior Women's Club met Saturday with Mrs. Ray Davis, at the ground of Atwater Grammar School, to dedicate a tree in her honor.

Mrs. Richard Pettit, president, dedicated the tree to Mrs. Davis, saying, "In honor of your many years of outstanding and tireless civic service to Circleville to Ohio clubwomen, especially your two years as president of Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs, we plant this tree in your honor. It will stand as a permanent tribute to you". Mrs. Davis then lifted the first shovel of dirt to plant the tree and each member of Junior Women's Club added another shovel, symbolizing the bond between all present.

Mrs. Davis expressed the hope as the tree grows and flourishes so will the Circleville Junior Women's Club. Due to her special affinity for trees, she said this tribute made her most happy. She complimented Junior Women's Club by comparing the tree's usefulness, grace and beauty to the usefulness, grace and beauty of the clubwomen.

A metal plaque commemorating the dedication of this tree to Mrs. Davis will be placed at the tree.

Mrs. Ray W. Davis, 120 Montclair Ave., is the first Native Pickaway Countian to win recognition in "Who's Who of American Women." A graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of music and the University of Cincinnati, she was the editor of the Codetta, president of the Women's Pan-Hellenic Association and instructor in the English and Music theory departments in the conservatory before she came to Circleville in 1931 as supervisor of vocal music in Circleville schools.

Mrs. Davis became a member of the Ohio Federation of Women's Club in 1934 when she was accepted as a member of the Monday Club, at that time the only federated club in this county. In 1938 and 39, was president of her club and the following summer received appointment as State Chairman of Education for OFWC.

In 1944, Mrs. Davis was elected president of South-east District as the youngest district president to served on the executive board up to that time it was during her term of office as district president that Mrs. Davis served as sponsor for the Circleville Junior Women's Club, and organized the Ashville Women's Civic Club. She served Ohio Federation through two terms as state education chairman, State legislation chairman, dean of departments, vice president and president in 1956 and 58. While she was legislation chairman, she started Legislation Days in OFWC.

As president of Ohio Federation, Mrs. Davis codified the rules and mechanics of OFWC work into manuals for club presidents, officers and chairmen; she established

Dear Abby...

By Abigail VanBuren

Honesty Rates No Reward

DEAR ABBY: My husband borrowed $100 from the finance company and the girl who waited on him made a mistake and gave him $200.

Now this is what makes me mad. When my husband discovered the mistake he carried the money back to the finance company and gave them the extra hundred. I am proud of him for being so honest, especially since we could have used that extra hundred ourselves. So after he gave it back, all the people at the finance company did was thank him for it. Don't you think they should have taken the interest off the hundred he borrowed, or given him a few dollars to show their appreciation?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You have a right to be proud of your husband, but no one should expect a reward for being honest.

Fabulous Energies, Funds Needed In Hunt for Secrets of Tiny Atom

Editor's Note: Like the probing of outer space, the study of the inner universe, the atom, requires tremendous outlays of energy — and money. But, again as in space exploration, the rewards are as great as the costs.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

Rockets to explore outer space demand tremendous energy. So also it takes tremendous energy to explore the inner universe of atoms, using protons and electrons as the main "rockets."

Speed them up with successive kicks of electricity and they can be sent crashing into atomic nuclei at nearly the speed of light. Electrons also can serve as a kind of microscope actually to "see" and measure individual particles in the nucleus.

Since World War II, physicists here, in Russia, Europe and elsewhere have built atom-smashers leapfrogging up to fabulous energies. Knowledge learned is freely shared.

The United States now has the most powerful accelerator at Brookhaven National Laboratory, firing protons at energies of 31 billion electron volts (BEV). This is triple Russia's strongest machine, but the Soviets propose one of 50 to 70 BEV. There are some reports the are already building it.

Rewards in knowledge are great. So are costs.

Though the Atomic Energy Commission and other agencies, the government this year is spending almost 60 million dollars in this research. Projected plans and machines call for 135 million by 1965 — less than a third of the sum now spent annually to store surplus grain and far less than the costs of exploring outer space.

It can cost three to six million a year to operate one of the big brute machines, mostly for electric power, maintenance special equipment and experimental devices.

One main way of accelerating particles is with a few big electrical kicks along a straight line tube — the nuclear accelerator.

The other is to whirl them around many thousands of times, slingshot fashion, with thousands of small electrical kicks. These are the synchrotrons and synchrocyclotrons.

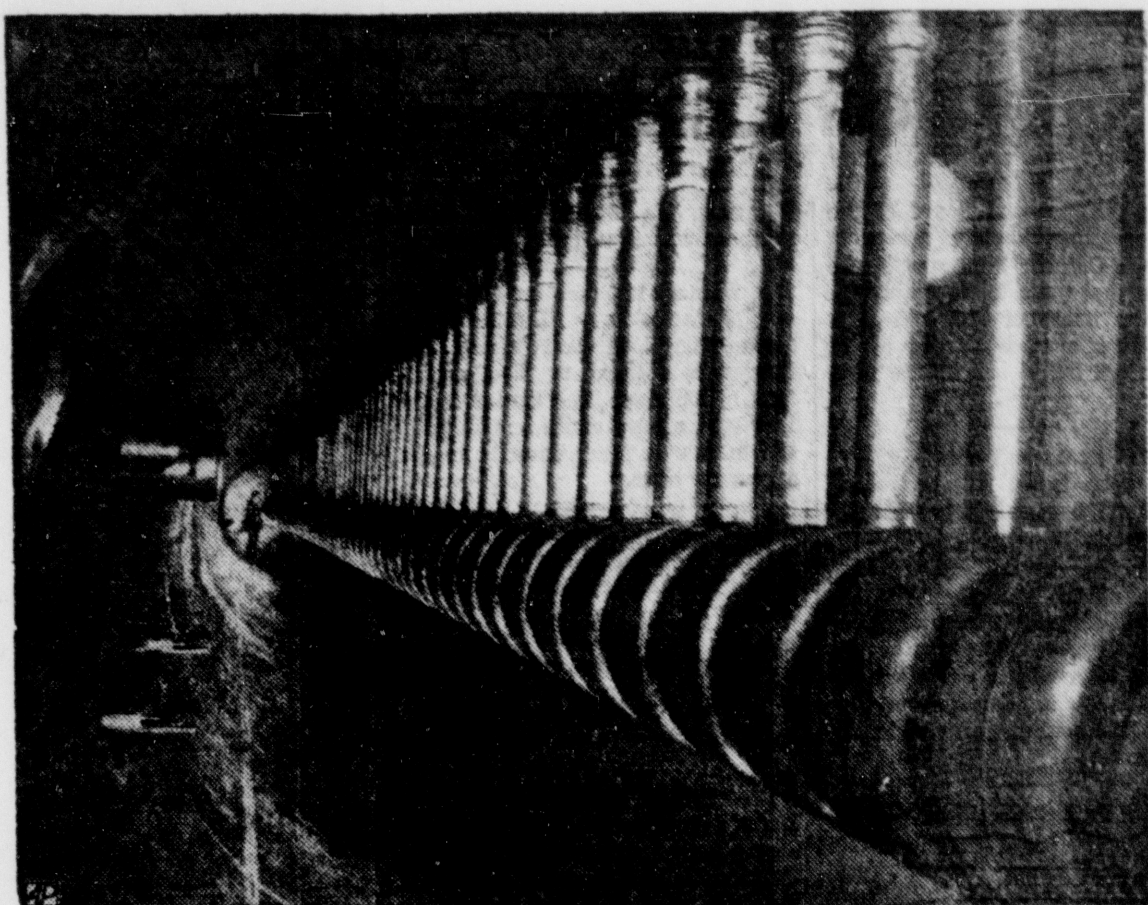

The particles race through hollow tubes, evacuated of air. Electromagnets around or beside the tube keep the particles curving within the tub until loosed upon the target.

The machines must produce millions and billions of "bullets" each second. Otherwise, trying to score a hit on the tiny atomic nucleus would be like firing a rifle bullet at a gnat miles away.

The first slingshot, the cyclotron, was developed early in the 1930's by the late Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence at the University of California. Its energy was only 80 thousand electron volts. (An electron volt is the energy one electron, or one proton, picks up in falling across one volt potential difference.)

Energies increased with new machines and designs. In 1952 came the 3 BEV Cosmotron at Brookhaven.

In 1954, the 6.2 BEV Bevatron whirled into action at the University of California. It, like the Cosmotron, was based on a new idea of Dr. Edwin McMillan of California for controlling electrical frequency to push the bullets to higher energy. Russia's V.I. Veksler independently had the same conception.

ATOMIC 'GUN BARREL' — The immense size of the equipment needed to crack the tiny atomic nucleus is graphically illustrated in this photograph of the interior of a new type atom smasher at the University of California. The man standing at the end of the atomic "gun barrel" is dwarfed by the doughnut-shaped "drift tubes" through which heavy fragments of matter are hurled.

The Bevatron pushed deeply into the nuclear frontier, finding among other knowledge the anti-proton, anti-neutron and anti-lambda particles.

Russia has a 10 BEV proton synchrotron, built its 36,000 tons of costly magnetic steel.

Brookhaven's new 31 BEV synchrotron, using a new principle of magnetic focusing, sends protons around a half-mile track 300,000 times within a second, yet its magnets weight only 4,000 tons.

In Switzerland, a similar machine of 28 BEV has been operated nearly a year now by the 12-nation European Organization for Nuclear Research (CERN).

Both machines can produce all the particles of the nuclear zoo. Most importantly, they can produce streams of them. So the newer particles can be studied intensely, or sent banging into other targets, to learn better what "causes" these "animals" belong in and how they relate to one another.

Building at Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago is a 42 million dollar 12.5 BEV machine which will produce a richer harvest of many of these particles.

Operated continuously, it would use enough electric power to light and run 70,000 homes. The great machines, in fact, often do run day and night, with experiments performed by professors and scientists from nearby universities and centers.

This opportunity for research strengthens universities for top-notch teachers then are not so tempted to move to distant places where they can take part in this exciting research, Argonne's Dr. Albert Crewe points out.

Here and abroad, literally scores of accelerators are at work. Regardless of size, each can contribute vital facts concerning the inner universe.

Linear accelerators are equally workhorses of this research.

At Stanford, for example, electrons from the 1 BEV linear accelerator have been used as a microscope to determine the size, shape and other properties of the proton, neutron and electron in research by Dr. Robert Hofstadter and associates. Clues come from the manner in which electrons bounce off their infinitesimal targets.

From this work, protons appear to be like fuzzy peaches, soft on the outside, hard on the inside. Now with a $500,000 magnetic spectrometer, the scientists hope to push deeper into the cores of protons and neutrons, and check fundamental theories about their tenacious and its finding forces.

Stanford and Princeton scientists are cooperating in building a new device to make two electron beams collide and to check theories about laws governing atoms and the nucleus. Electrons from the present machine will collide with energies equivalent to that from a 1,000 BEV linear accelerator.

To open another frontier, Stanford scientists have proposed a two-mile long linear accelerator producing 10 to 45 BEV energies. It would cost about 107 million.

At the University of Wisconsin, the Midwest Universities Research Assn. is building small models for a proposed 15 BEV synchrotron which would collide two beams of protons, at energy equivalent to one 540 BEV accelerator, to investigate deeper secrets of the proton.

In cosmic rays from space, nature showers down particles reaching energies of millions to a billion BEV. Balloons carrying special photographic plates are sent 20 miles or more high to record their hits and new data about the atomic nucleus.

At the California Institute of Technology, Dr. Carl D. Anderson and associates are constructing special new counters and cloud chambers to capture and study in the laboratory some of the explosive and revealing "events" created by cosmic rays.

With genius and tools, the search proceeds to make sense of all the particles, and four forces known so far to be involved in the inner universe. These forces are:

1. The "strong" forces binding atomic hearts together.
 2. Electromagnetic forces within the atom, 100 times weaker.
 3. The "weak" reactions which determine how any particle changes or decays into other particles — this is perhaps 10 billion times weaker than the electromagnetic forces.
 4. Much weaker still, the gravitational force.
- "Only through these four forces does any particle in the universe know anything about the presence of any other particle, and so to be influenced by it," Dr. Crewe explains.

But therein lies a key to the whole universe.

Nature probably is simpler in her grandeur than now appears from the array of particles and physical laws so far understood, says Dr. Geoffrey Chew of California, one of the theoretical physicists puzzling over the entire problem. Present theories may have to be revised.

The need, as Dr. Oppenheimer has expressed it, is for discovery of a principle of "immense sweep and simplicity."

Perhaps, says one physicist, "the answer may come from some bright kid, in high school now, who manages to glimpse and understand the whole beautiful pattern."

Crosby Showgirl Wives Tell Of Clean Sweep in Las Vegas

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Now that the Crosby brothers have made it a clean sweep—four marriages to four Las Vegas showgirls — it's time for some research on this phenomenon.

I managed to corral three of the wives for a panel discussion. It wasn't easy. They were busy with their own growing families, plus their husbands' opening at Ciro's Thursday night, plus a party to welcome the latest member of the sorority. She is statuesque Barbara Stuart, Flamingo, class of '60, who wed Gary this month.

Reading from from left to right, our panel consisted of:
Mrs. Philip Crosby, the former Sandra Drummond, 22, Tropicana '58, a slender brunette.
Mrs. Dennis Crosby, the former Pat Sheehan, 28, Tropicana '57, a vivacious blonde.

Mrs. Lindsay Crosby, the former Barbara Fredrickson, 23, Desert Inn, '59, a quiet honey-blond.

First question: Why do Crosby boys go for Las Vegas girls?
"Coincidence," replied Pat. "Things just happen. I met Dennis, and I introduced his twin Philip to Sandra, who was working in the same show."

"Actually," Sandra added, "It was accidental. I was only in Las Vegas for a year. None of us stayed there very long."

"Furthermore," Barbara remarked, "I met Lindsay in Los Angeles, where I was appearing with Tony Martin's act."

But the legend dies hard and will be sustained by jokes from Bob Hope. The girls laughed over the circumstances of Gary's succumbing. When he played Las Vegas recently the chorines did a number called "We're Gunning for Gary," since he was the sole remaining bachelor. Among the girls aiming a pistol was his present bride.

7,000 Men To Get Call By Draft in November

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army today issued a draft call for 7,000 men in November.

This compares with the quota of 9,000 previously announced for October.

The new call brought to 2,563, 930 the total number drafted or earmarked for induction since the resumption of Selective Service in September 1950.

The younger brothers now form a trio. What's to stop it from becoming a sextette?

"Tis" said Pat. "No interest."

3 Professors Are Sentenced

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP)—Three male members of the faculty of Smith College today received District Court sentences on morals complaints.

Professors Frederick Newton Arvin, 60, and Joel R. Dorius, 41 and instructor Edward W. Spofford 29, stood on pleas of innocence but submitted to court findings of guilty to complaints against them.

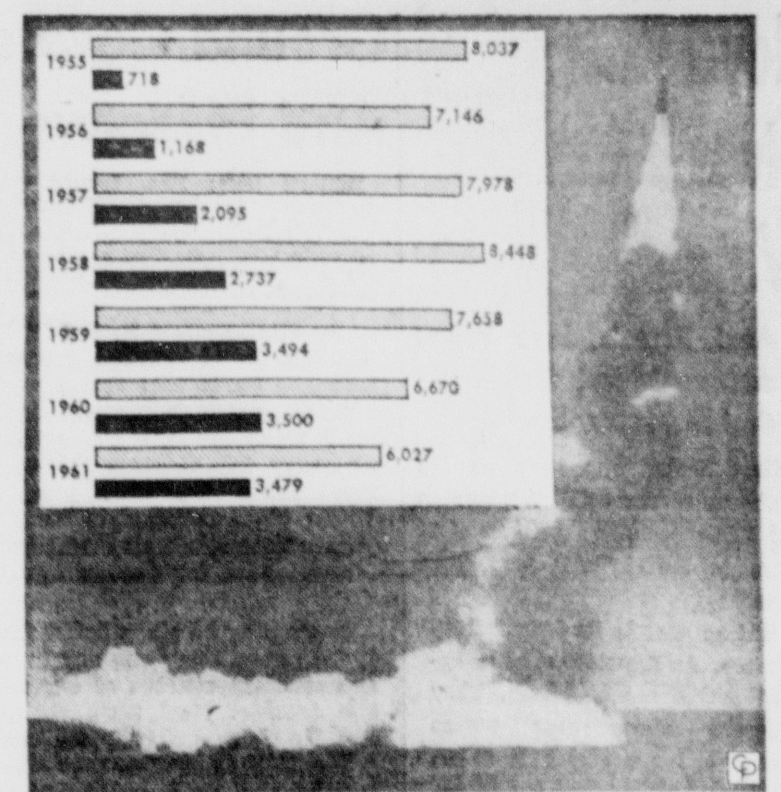

Two other defendants, also men but not connected with Smith, a women's college, likewise submitted to findings of guilty, while standing on their pleas of innocence. Another male defendant went on trial on a charge of lewdness, but the court rejected his plea of no contest. Later he submitted to a finding of guilty. All three were given suspended sentences.

A seventh male defendant, a former instructor in a preparatory school for boys, is still under observation in the Northampton State Hospital.

Arvin was fined on a lewdness complaint and a complaint charging possession of obscene pictures and materials for exhibition given a suspended sentence of one year in the House of Correction and placed on probation for two years.

Dorius and Spofford, charged with possession of obscene pictures and materials for exhibition, were fined and because their counsel indicated appeals would be taken the court imposed one year sentences which were not suspended. Each was released in bail.

The agreement to submit to court findings of guilt, without introduction of evidence, was reached in a lengthy conference among the attorneys and the prosecutor, Dist. Atty. Sanford Keedy in the chambers of Judge Charles J. O'Connor.

Floyd Shaw Gives 'Em Water

And That's Just What Asters Need During A Hot, Dry Spell

Floyd Shaw, who lives on the southeast corner of S. Washington and Mill streets is a veteran of 21 years in the hybrid seed corn business.

But he goes in for hybrid flowers too. At the moment his hybrid asters are in bloom. They measure about four inches across and are cerise in color. He paid a dollar and a half for 30 seeds but he is well pleased with the results of his planting.

He has two mass plantings of asters in lavender, pink and white. He has many lovely lavenders, both light and dark. He is a little disappointed this year to have so few white asters.

Asters in general are suffering right now from heat and lack of moisture. But not in Floyd Shaw's yard.

"I'm making myself a big water bill," he admits but water is what his asters need right now and water is what they're getting.

The Shaw yard boasts a metal grape arbor. And that grape arbor is a pretty sight now with the blue clusters of concord grapes hanging overhead.

Shaw is somewhat disappointed in the women folks nowadays. They just don't want to bother making grape jelly. You'd think he could sell his grapes for five cents a pound. But no sir!

But the grape arbor affords shade and the grapes give a delicious odor. It's a favorite loafing place for Shaw.

Shaw has hybrid petunias which measure four inches across—and that's a pretty big petunia. These seeds were each covered with a paraffin-like substance. It was all of six weeks before they emerged from the ground and Shaw had given up hope.

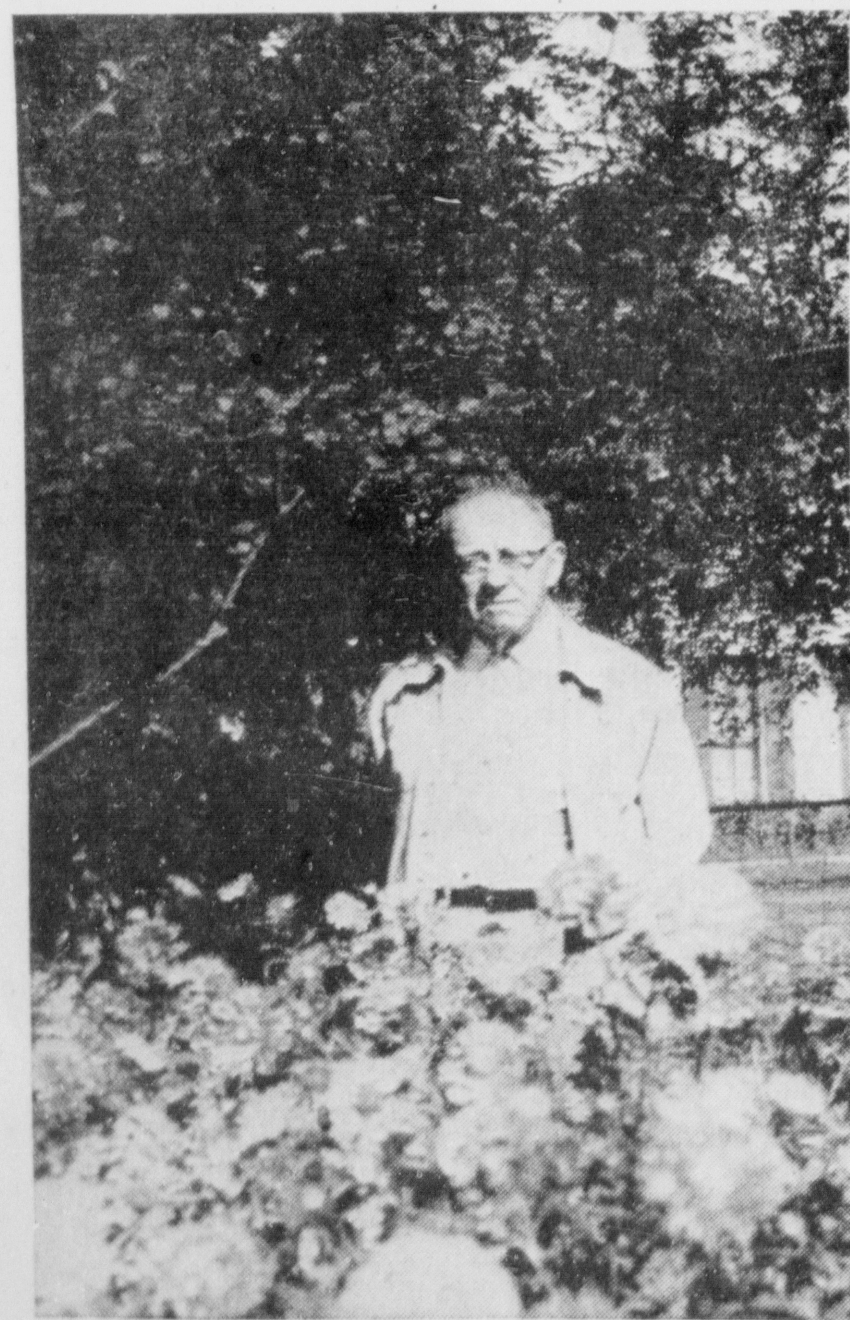

In the Shaw yard is an apple tree and a damson plum tree and a small vegetable garden. The five hybrid tomatoes have provided at least four bushels of tomatoes for this gardener and the plants are still bearing.

SHAW has been successful in growing roses from slips. He plants the slip under a jar. But he is a strict believer in raising the jar and allowing a little fresh air in every now and then. Shaw said that most people thought it was not a good practice to lift the jar once it had been placed over the slip.

The garden club ladies have long admired Shaw's big blue clematis. This vine flourished for 15 years but he is fearful lest it be dying right at present.

On either side of the iron gate he has planted artemisia, Silver King. At present the artemisia is almost four feet high.

The asters however have stolen the show in the Shaw garden. There are literally thousands of them, some large, some small, a few singles but all beautifully grown and well cared for flowers that have plenty of water during a dry spell.

ASTER PLANTING — Floyd Shaw at the corner of S. Washington and E. Mill Sts. had every right to be proud of his asters this September. At a time when most gardens were feeling the hot dry spell his flowers were rejoicing in the plentiful supply of water they were receiving. The result was a crop of excellently grown flowers which stood up well under the torrid September weather.

Ground Covers Are Available And Effective If Utilized

Editor's Note: Mrs. Donald Watt, N. Court Street, has a garden that manages to be beautiful at all seasons of the year. We noticed how effectively Mrs. Watt used ground covers and asked her to do an article on the subject for the Herald.

By ELIZABETH R. WATT
On the best ordered property there are parts that refuse to be pleasant ones to look upon. Under shady trees the absence of light and heavy drip of every rain obliterates grass year after year. In another place the surface roots of trees have taken all the nourishment intended for the lawn grasses.

There may be steep banks facing the noon-day sun and these are constant sources of expense and trouble. New turfs shrivel and become a prey for crab grass; if it is seeded, rain often carries new seed and prepared soil into the gutters. Or a clearing of bushes requires a cover to restore the natural effects.

With these vexations to overcome, it is a relief to know that there are good plant materials that will provide covers for every condition. Weeds and fickle grass can be replaced by plants that are both happy and attractive in their plantings.

For those shady places one might try a planting of Lily-of-the-valley (Convallaria Majalis). They produce attractive leaves which remain during the summer with lovely waxy white bell blooms of heavy fragrance in the spring. Majalis rosea a glorious new one is identical in every respect except it has a soft pink bloom. Then Majalis fl. pl. which is extremely rare has a beautiful double pure waxen bloom. This variety seems quite slow to multiply.

PERIWINKLE or Trailing Myrtle (Vinca Minor) is a hardy evergreen herb. This makes a dense, attractive ground cover, and thrives with practically no care. It does well on dry, sandy banks. The bloom is a light blue. A special variety is the Variegata leaf which has a white bloom.

Ground Ivy (Nepeta Hederacea) and Batilla Ivy — (Helix Gracilis) are hardy evergreens with compact habits. They need practically no trimming to keep in bounds. Hedera is the classical name of the Ivy. The English Ivy (Hedera telix) is one of the most valuable of the evergreens vines, as it is useful for walls, rocks, any rough surface like the bark of trees and it is decorative trained on trellises. Ivy is easily propagated by cuttings. Many of which are already provided with aerial roots.

Candytuft (Iberis) is an extremely useful evergreen shrublets making compact mounds of deep green and dazzling display of snow white blooms. One of the hardiest of plants and if trimmed severely after blooming is a source of delight for many years in either rocky or border. A newer variety, tenoreana has a delicate pink bloom. This one will bloom itself to death if not pruned severely during the summer.

Classed as Wintercreepers is Euonymus Fortunei Coratus or Radicans. The silvery-margined leaves of Argenteo-marginatus is a highly valued vine. Euonymus Radican Minimus is a small leaf type. It is very easily grown and extremely attractive.

For the places that are partially shady your Japanese Spurge, Pachysandra Terminalis is one of the finest. This excellent plant, which is used extensively for a ground cover, will do well in either sun or shade.

Silver Variegata is a lovely new form with silver and green leaves. This is particularly effective where contrast is desired with surrounding deep green plants.

BUGLE weed, Ajuga reptans Alba is a new form with snowy white flowers. Reptan Variegata has silver and green foliage with decided rose tints. This bloom is blue. Ajuga Genarvensis has a rich dark green foliage and deep blue flowers on six inch spikes. This variety is more commonly used.

Any variety of Honeysuckle (Lonicera) which comprise of a group of over 150 species are found throughout the Northern Hemisphere. Gold Flame is a most choice variety, this one will bloom profusely from early spring to a heavy frost.

For those places which have more sunshine, the various colors of your Creeping Phlox, Phlox Subulata, also, listed as Phlox various species can be used. Soon one can have heavy evergreen tufts which will remain throughout the winter months. This type of ground cover is ideal for bordering beds or stepping stones.

The pendulum is swinging toward renewed popularity for the friendly, fringy prettiness of pinks. They are members of the Genus Dianthus. This type and color in this family is numerous. Garden species of pinks are easy to grow almost anywhere and soon form thick evergreen mats which remain decorative the year round. They are helpful in bringing about a pleasant effect.

Erica (Heather) varieties Sherwoodie and Carneia are very hardy which quickly forms wide spreading mats smothered with brilliant rose-red blooms as soon as the snow leaves in early spring. These plants attract a great deal of interest in the garden. There are over 500 species of this Ericaceae family.

Forget-me-not, Myosotis scorpioides is very interesting the entire blooming season. Like the Ajuga it is deciduous. They both favor a little shade for best results.

LIKE THE Woodland Ferns, (Furnz); Forget-me-nots favor the moist places in your garden. The aromatic perennials, Thyme which is of the mint family, contains over 50 species. Some varieties are grown for ornament or for their fragrant herbage used as seasoning. Thymus is an old Greek name, for some fragrant plants, perhaps savory.

Variegata Vulgaris, (Lemon Thyme) sometimes known as T. Ceryllum Citriodorus is a variety with small lemon scented leaves.

Variegata Lanuginosus, or Woolly Thyme produces a gray hairy plant with a dainty bright pink flowers. It is considered excellent for stepping stones.

Citriodorus Aureus is a golden variegated bushlet forming a bright spot in a rocky or border.

Citriodorus Argenteus is another interesting variety with its beautiful silver and white leaves. This species is a bit difficult to establish.

The Common Thyme (Vulgaris) is an erect woody herb which stands 6 to 8 inches in height. The stems are of a white-hairy type. The leaves are nearly stalkless, ovalish or narrow, scarcely a half inch long with rolled margins. Your flowers of one-fourth inch in length are lilac to purplish in coloring.

THYME is a valuable plant with such uses as a carpeting or border for stepping stones, on stone walls or for dry banks, covering barren exposed spots in the rocky, or for a covering in the bulb bed. All varieties have evergreen aromatic foliage and bloom profusely. One can walk through a planting or walk steadily on it. No harm is done by cutting it off by a mower, in fact an occasional shearing is most beneficial.

It seems to be pest free and well able to resist dry weather, the blooming season is about a month and a most welcome planting whether in bloom or not. Vulgaris Multiples quite rapidly and strangles all type of grasses and weeds. For highly desirable ground covering one can recommend any of the varieties which have been reviewed in this article. Those mentioned are only a few of the choice, practical, inexpensive and easily grown varieties for complete success and surpassing beauty.

In the plant kingdom, there are very valuable and highly desirable ones which can be used and trained to be excellent ground covers altho, they are not considered in the ground covering class. A few to try are Primroses (primula); Rock Cress (Anibrieta); Coral Bells, Pulmonaria, (Lungwort); Saxifraga, the numerous hardy succulents, which include the equally as large family of Sedum and Sempervivum. The (Pimelia); New Zealand Laphne, while very rare is a lovely little prostrate shrub carpeting the ground. Various rock garden Iris will multiply quickly as well as the Platina Lily, Funkia, listed at Hosta.

There are many others equally as interesting and all an additional welcomed to the gardener who wished great variety in her garden.

Plant Anemones In the Fall

Bulbs To Be Planted Right Side Up

Mrs. Emmanuel Schaal, Route 4, Circleville, is one person in Pickaway County who has had excellent luck with French anemones. She plants the curious little bulbs in the fall about the same time she plants her tulips and daffodils.

Each bulb must be carefully inspected to see that it is planted right side up. Mrs. Schaal says she buys her bulbs at various places. Last year some of them came from Kochheiser's Hardware. She also purchased some in Columbus at Wilson's Seed store and her brother J. L. Chilcote gave her some.

She planted some in full sun and some to the north of the house which gave them a shaded location. The bulbs in both locations bloomed satisfactorily.

One of Mrs. Schaal's neighbors, Ed Ingram told us about the planting of anemones. He had been fascinated with the bright single blossoms which have a black heart. The colors vary from red to pink and lavender to deep purple.

Mrs. Schaal says that one of the nice things about French anemones is that they last a long time. They started to bloom with the daffodils and were still blooming when the daffodils had spent themselves.

Many Pickaway County gardeners plant French anemones in the spring (this includes myself). Frequently the anemones are a disappointment, only blooming intermittently and not making much of a show. We were under the impression that the bulbs were not hardy. But Mrs. Schaal's experience has proved differently.

Hazel Schaal does not consider herself an expert she says, but she was indeed pleased with the results of fall-planted anemone bulbs.

In the new Burpee catalogue that arrived today, directions for showy Anemone coronaria are as follows: "Plant bulbs three inches deep and six inches apart; winter protection is required north of Washington D. C., in northern states or any cold region we do not advise outdoor fall planting; wait until spring and treat as annuals."

The garden page editor would be pleased to hear from Pickaway County persons who have had good luck with fall planting.

The anemone is a lovely flower and perfect for arrangement making. It lasts ten days in water. The bulbs are not expensive, a STRAW FLOWERS — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Turner, 348 Watt St. gather some straw flowers for winter decoration. The Turners who go in for "easy-to-grow" flowers that do not need to be "catered to" had a very eye-catching border of these clover-like straw flowers. The Turners say anybody can grow globe amaranth if he can dig a trench one inch deep. The best part about these flowers is that they bloom colorfully for at least ten weeks. When picked at the right time they will last indefinitely in a winter bouquet.

Garden Gossip

When the National Board of the American Rose Society meets in Columbus October 1 members who can stay over are to be entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Noggle on W. Union St. at an informal buffet supper the next evening.

All the great and near-great of the rose world will be there including the society's president, Helen Schoene.

According to Mrs. Henry Wickman of Wickman's Floral Shop in Webster Groves, Mo., the small red rose, Garnet, is a very popular one in the trade. Cut flowers frequently last a week or more in arrangements.

Pure white egg plants have been making their appearance in the markets in Webster Groves. Very stunning! And arrangers think they will be beautiful in vegetable-flower compositions.

And speaking of white, in Olney Ill. not too far from Webster, they have a race of white squirrels. Olney residents are so proud of them it is against the law to ship a white squirrel out of town.

ON SEPTEMBER 14 we noticed that the barn swallows were flying around and dipping in the pond at noontime instead of their usual time which is about sunset.

To our surprise there was one pure white swallow among the others. We had never noticed a white one before. It looked beautiful as it glided towards the water with outspread wings.

All the swallows seem to have dollar a dozen perhaps. So while we do not recommend fall planting if the Burpee catalogue does not, still let's all experiment. They'd add greatly to the spring show as Mrs. Schaal, who loves the little wild anemones will tell you.

left now. We decided the white swallow was a migratory swallow.

A woman we met on the train who is from Quincy Ill. told us that during the flood last spring the deer were obliged to flee an island in the river. The leader of the deer was a pure white one. A wildlife man was lucky enough to get a picture of it.

The Emmitt Tooles, Route 4, say that their dahlias have reached their peak and are sort of tapering off now.

The snapdragons at the Toole garden are about the only flowers in bloom beside their dahlias.

The Tooles like annuals. Mrs. Toole says perennials are ok but they bloom such a short time while annuals bloom for weeks and weeks.

Ed Ingram, Stringtown flower man, has harvested his glad corms. He planted his glads early and they bloomed weeks ago.

Mrs. J. M. Rife, Walnut Twp., has a garden full of flowers now. She is very successful with tuberous rooted begonias, far from the easiest flowers in the world to grow.

Put this item down for future use. If you ever have anything to do with a garden at the Horticulture Building at the Ohio State Fair beware of using geraniums. They take on a scalded appearance after the first night. Experts say that a gas is given off from the apple display which ruins the geraniums.

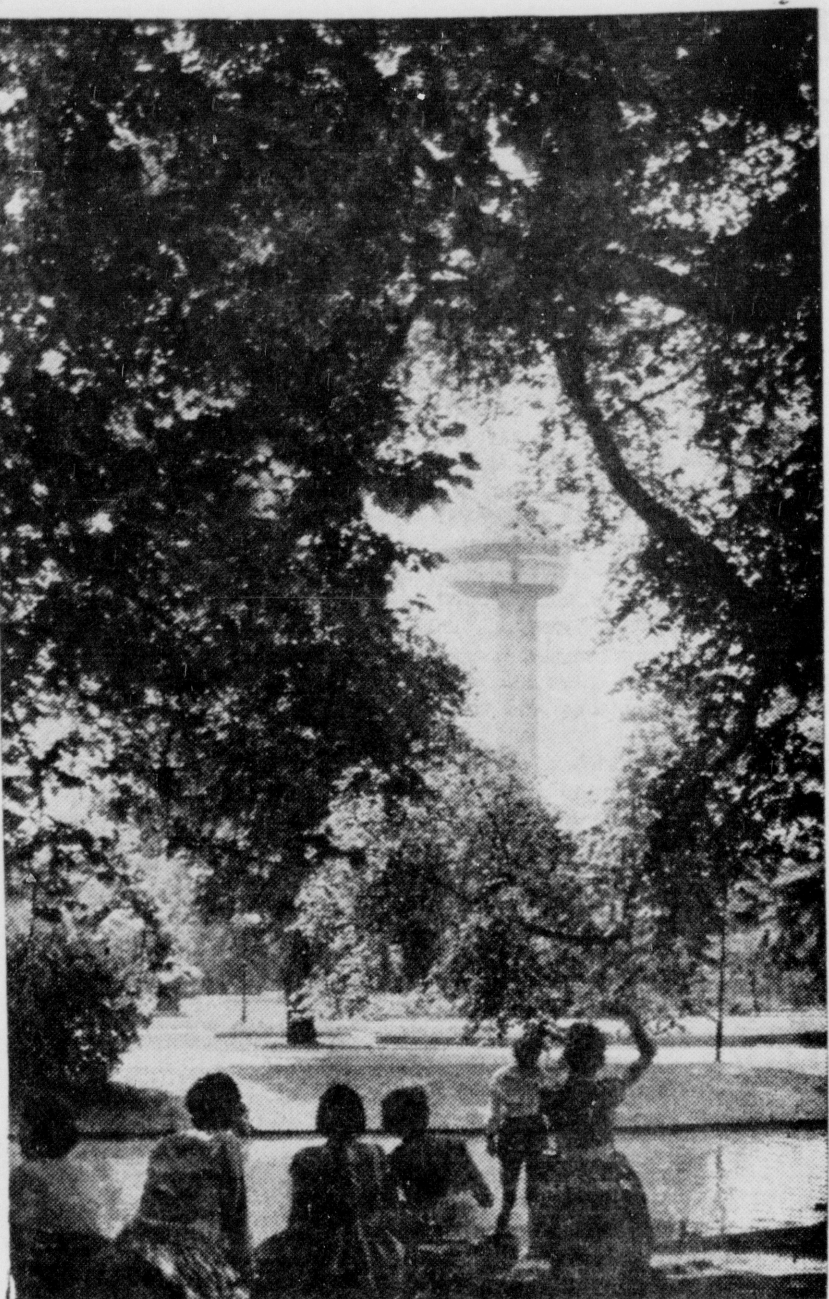

THE PICKAWAY Garden Club had a sad experience with geraniums this year. Mrs. Schubert Mea, samer, president of the club had to do some quick replacing in order to keep the gardens looking at their best. For some reason the apple gas has no effect on chrysanthemums which were used as replacements.

Mrs. Reginald Blue, Frankfort, is something of a daffodil specialist. Because of a heart attack the doctor has forbidden her to work in the garden. She wistfully asked her family if they would plant some bulbs for her if she sent for them. The family said, "Of course". Mrs. Blue is about to break the news that she ordered 300 daffodils.

Mrs. Fred Griner, E. Main St., cut off her peony leaves this week. She had read where September 22 was the date for cutting peony foliage but she decided she'd do it early when help was available. She cuts off her peony foliage each year.

Doyle Cupp, S. Pickaway St., is dusting his roses with plain old sulphur and having excellent luck. He's been using sawdust instead of peatmoss and he likes sawdust better.

For the first time a minimum sugar content has been proposed for cantaloupes. USDA has established a minimum of 9 per cent sugar content for cantaloupes graded U. S. No. 1. In short, a grade A cantaloupe will be sweet.

THE EUROMAST — Twenty years after its destruction in the spring of 1940, the rebuilt City of Rotterdam is today a mecca for city planners and a living museum of contemporary architecture. Millions of visitors this summer attended the giant Floriade, an international horticultural exhibition, planned to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the tulip and the 100th anniversary of the Royal General Dutch Bulb Growers Society. The Euromast, designed as a kind of ship's bridge lifted 370 feet above the Floriade grounds, gives from its restaurant and observation decks a commanding view of all Rotterdam and the activities of the port.

Local Iris Expert Gives Garden Tips

Editor's Note—Mrs. Orlan King has been giving advice to iris fanciers for a long time now. Herself a grower of iris, she knows the best of the old and the best of the new. Mrs. King has experimented with all sorts of iris, even the big Japanese. She is perhaps at her best when rowing and talking about tall bearded iris. The following is an article about these lovely May blooming flowers.

By LAURA KING
So you have a dry sunny garden! Then plant the tall bearded iris that like their rhizomes baked by the sun.
Their culture offers few difficulties. One finds bold clumps of escaped bearded iris along the dusty wayside. But better culture, of course, brings better results.

They prefer plenty of sunshine and a rich soil deeply dug with plenty of sunshine and a rich soil deeply dug with plenty of lime. (No manure, but when I plant mine I always set them in a handful of bonemeal.) And give them generous watering while the buds are forming if the weather is dry.
It is easy to have too many iris in the garden for they take up considerable space, spreading generously.

THE TINY root purchased today for a fat price will have become the great great grandfather of many in a few years. So it is wise to buy carefully, visiting a good iris collection and choosing those that please you most from the flowering specimens in the garden.

The trouble is that nearly all are too beautiful. If one has a particular color scheme in mind this will help in the selection.
Modern bearded iris tend to have taller stems and grow larger of flower. Sometimes these do not make as fine close masses of flower as the more dwarf kinds.

These modern wonders may reach to the amazing heights of 50 inches. The stems will be branched, the flowers perfect and of fine texture.
The greatest pest the iris fancier has to fight is the iris borer. In April or May a little brown moth lays its eggs in the leaf.

When the eggs hatch the leaves of the iris look watery. Then is the time to pull the leaf and kill the worm or it will eat its way down into the rhizome. There it stays until the following spring when it emerges as a little brown moth.

Iris Borer is hard to fight. Some growers recommend spraying in March and April with arsenate of lead (1/4 pound to three gallons of water.)

When weather is very wet iris gets root rot. The only thing to do then is to dig the rhizomes and dip in a preparation of one gallon of water and two tablespoons of potassium permanganate. Let rhizomes dry in sun and replant.

The National Iris Society publishes a symposium of the 100 best iris every year.

North Laos Reds Ordered To Quit

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The Communist Pathet Laos radio said today all its armed units have been ordered to cease military activities in northern Laos.

The broadcast said the move was to reaffirm Pathet Laos sincere support of the neutralist government of Prince Souvanna Phouma and the coup d'etat committee of Capt. Kong Le. Le's paratroopers recently overthrew the government of Premier Tiao Somsanith and installed Phouma in his place.

An opposition, anti-Communist force led by Gen. Phoumi Nosavan several days ago threatened to overthrow Phouma's government.

Curious Wedding Bell Tree Probably Tropical Origin

Mrs. Thomas R. Smith's wedding bell tree will cause a flurry among the horticultural minded persons of this locality if they happen to see it in bloom.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Smith, who lives at 415 Sunny View Drive, counted 72 blossoms. The blossoms are six inches, perhaps eight inches long and flare out like a bell. They are white and sweetly scented.

The tree was given to Mrs. Smith by a friend in Baltimore, Baltimore, Ohio, that is. It is a tender plant and must be taken inside the house for the winter. In fact should frost come unawares some night Mrs. Smith had orders to spray it with a hose to keep off the frost bite.

Mrs. Smith has no idea what the botanical name of the wedding bell tree is. She assumes it is a tropical plant. But it is both interesting and beautiful when in bloom.

Mrs. Smith who has no basement in her modern home winters the plant over in the back bedroom and if it grows much larger she will have to give it up.

No, Mrs. Smith does not give slips of her tree to the persons who ask for them. There would probably be no tree left had she been obliging in regard to this matter.

The wedding bell tree needs lots of water. Mrs. Smith whose husband is in Greenland on construction work at present, says she waters it twice a day during a hot dry spell. She has placed a drain age tile near the trunk of the tree and waters it at its roots.

Persons who are familiar with datura will notice that wedding bell blossoms bear a close resemblance to the large trumpets of this annual plant.

The tree is about to bear another crop of blossoms.

WEDDING BELL TREE — This curious and beautiful tree is strange to this locality. Mrs. Thomas R. Smith of 415 Sunny View Drive believes it to be a tropical plant. At any rate she winters it over in the bedroom of her home and plants it outdoors each year. Its sweetly scented blossoms are white, flare wide open in the evening and are partly closed during the heat of the day.

THOSE MATH GUYS IN MOSCOW—The U.S. National Security agency math guys who disappeared last June are shown at a news conference in Moscow, where they showed up just as expected. Left: William H. Martin, 29; right: Bernon F. Mitchell, 31. They read a statement which said among other things that they would be able to do research in Russia "without fear of causing economic damage to others." Also in Moscow, and shown in his apartment, is Prof. Maurice H. Halperin, who says the State department is lying when it says he is helping the Soviet in Latin American affairs. Halperin, who was fired some years back by Boston university for refusing the say whether he had ever been a Communist party member, insists he is a visiting professor at Moscow university.

Varied Schools Study Break In Stock Mart

Wall Street Offers Opinions on Meaning Of Plunge in Prices

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The sharp drop in stock prices Monday is less interesting for what caused it than for what the break itself could do.

And what you think could happen depends largely on whether you belong to the group that regards the stock market as a mirror of business prospects or to those who see it as a barometer of psychological trends.

The latter see it foretelling which way sentiment is headed—and which way it is likely to jump after a break below this year's previous lows reacts on public and stock trader confidence.

There's quite a difference in the two attitudes, even if both do affect each other.

The first group sees the break as a result of a long series of unbusiness news brought front and center by the dramatization of international uncertainties as Red chiefs gathered for the United Nations meeting.

The nonchartists say good news on either the business or international fronts could spark a reversal of stock price trends. In the meantime they would expect stock prices to back and fill while establishing a new floor—whether that be the one set Monday, Tuesday or next week.

Those who look for psychological repercussions from the break through previous lows for the year expect the immediate reaction to be among the chart keepers. These traders put great store on any break setting off selling waves. There are enough chart followers to add to and prolong such a wave.

Beyond these are stockholders, either traders or investors, who could still have paper profits on stocks they bought at a lower price than today's who might wish to protect these remaining paper profits by selling now.

Or there are those who might want to sell now, registering for tax purposes the losses from what they paid for their stocks, and then switch to other stocks as they show up on the bargain lists.

The longer-range psychological reaction—and the one getting the closest attention, and also the hardest to assess—is what the stock break might do to public sentiment.

All year the public has been following stock trends closely. With the spread of stock buying among those who never owned stocks before, interest has mounted. What investors do about their holdings—far greater than those in the hands of in-and-out traders—could be a big factor in the market.

And many who don't own stocks still put high value on which way stock prices are tending as a sign of whether times will get better or worse.

This often affects their spending decisions, and thus the sales of merchants and the purveyors

Waverly Is No Ghost Town Despite Contrary Evidence

WAVERLY, Ohio (AP)—Waverly is not a ghost town, despite some evidence to the contrary.

You risk the ire of the remaining townfolk if you even suggest that it is an abandoned community.

It's true that a 400-residence subdivision now has only four families.

It's also true that valuable business properties stand unoccupied and suffered from lack of maintenance.

And it isn't entirely uncommon for some of those who remember the free spending days of 1952-1956 to comment dolefully, "business has gone to Hell."

The housing subdivision was financed by the federal government during the boom days when the $112 million Pike County Atomic Energy Plant was being built. Some of the businesses were built during those days to gather in the dollars of nearly 25,000 migrant workers employed at the atomic plant.

The workers have long since gone — and the business with them.

Many businessmen of this Pike County seat say ambitious plans are afoot to bring thriving business back again.

The subdivision was one of three built to accommodate the boom population bulge that flooded the area with workers seeking shelter. The other two still have many homes occupied. But while the original purchase price was about $10,000, and rent was $85-$100, the prices have slipped now to about $7,500 and $50-$65 monthly.

In the peak days, the Waverly population swelled around 8,000, compared with 1800 in 1950. The 1960 census showed the population at about 4,000.

Marion H. Dixon, bank cashier, is one community figure who thinks Waverly is better off now than before the boom.

"We are in a better position as far as our economy, based primarily on agriculture and timber, is concerned," he said. "Resources of our two banks total approximately $10 million—double those of 10 years ago. And our deposits have increased proportionately."

Waverly's chamber of commerce reorganized as the Pike County chamber with Kelley E. Wallace, a loan company manager, as president.

The chamber is promoting formation of a county development corporation to spur industrial growth.

The corporation is currently authorized to sell $100,000 in stock to help build industrial facilities or loan for factory building.

Wallace says a dozen industries have looked over the community already.

Truman Refuses Post in Senate

INDEPENDENCE Mo. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman put his political foot down today, declaring in no uncertain terms that he does not choose to run for the Senate. Neither did he recommend anyone for the job.

"I will not accept the nomination to the Senate because I don't think it is right for me to accept it," Truman said, "I say no, positively."

Various Democrats, he said, have been pressuring him to seek the job left vacant by the death of Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr., who had two years remaining of his term.

Ike-Khrush Parley Talk Said Inspired by Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—White House press secretary James C. Hagerty today attributed to "the Russian propaganda game" continuing reports that President Eisenhower will meet with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Hagerty said Soviet sources have leaked a whole series of reports on such a meeting.

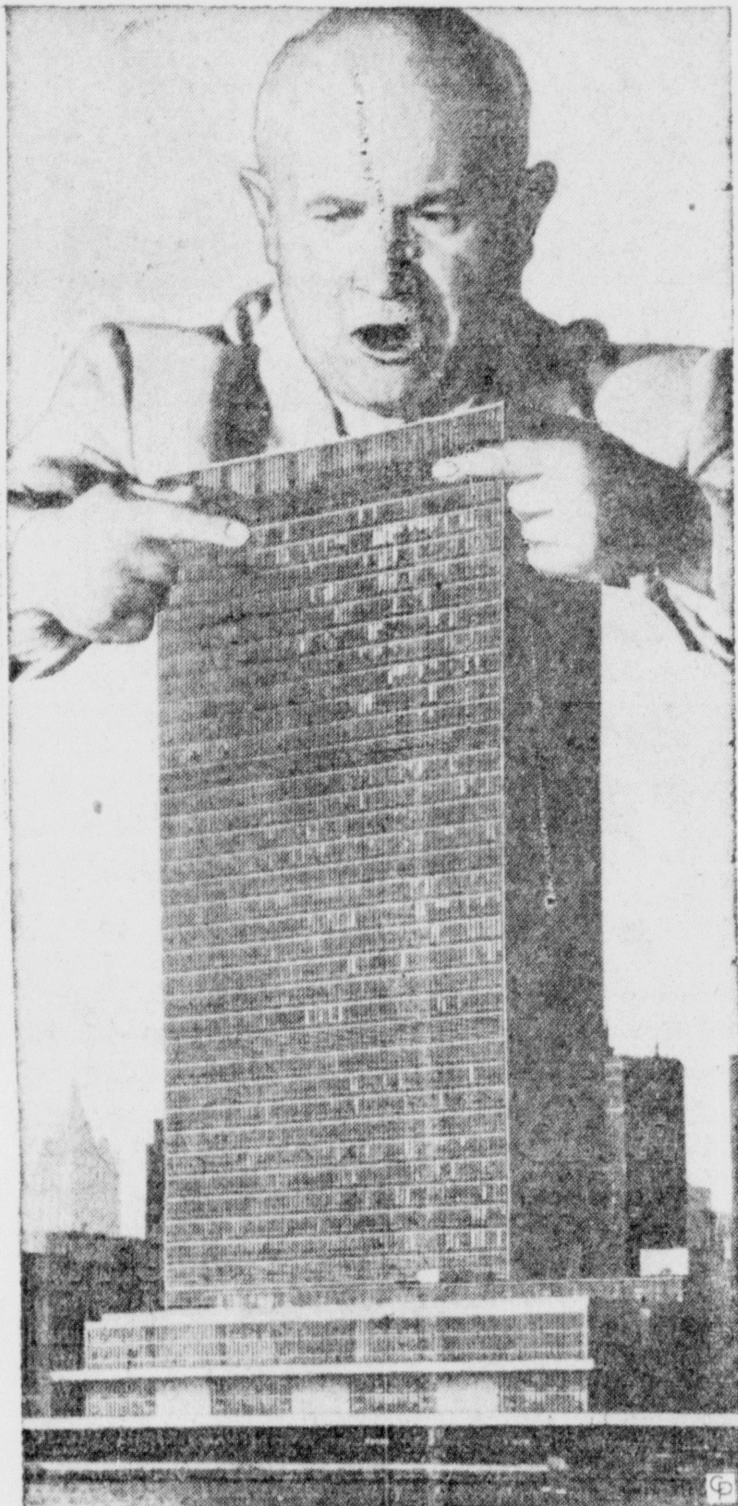

He said it had been made clear repeatedly by U.S. officials that there are no plans for this.

International Gourmet Handed $1,000 Fine

NEW YORK (AP)—Claudius Charles Phillippe, former vice president of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and internationally known gourmet, has been fined $10,000 on a guilty plea to evading $25,471 in income taxes.

U.S. Dist. Judge Gregory Noonan imposed the fine Monday and dismissed three other counts charging Phillippe evaded an additional $63,234.

of services. It also affects the spending decisions and other planning by business executives, and thus the amount of new orders, the hiring or laying off of workers, the expansion of plants and other business activities.

THE HIGH AND THE MIGHTY—If the United Nations delegates aren't careful, this mental image may occur to a lot of observers when the meeting opens in New York Sept. 20.

Voting is the sacred duty and obligation of every citizen; but, unfortunately, many people take the obligation too lightly. Less than 60% of those eligible to vote voted in the last presidential election. Our country does not penalize the citizen who does not vote, but in many countries the failure to cast a ballot carries a stiff penalty. In Mexico you are fined for not voting and barred from voting in the next election. In New Zealand you are fined $5.60 the first time you do not vote and $12.60 each time thereafter. In Belgium they fine you and publish your name as "a citizen that shirks his duty." In Argentina you go to jail for ten days if you miss three elections. Even the primitive natives of Australia have a penalty for not voting at a tribal election. If you do not vote, the winner can take all your belongings, including your wife and family. Be a good citizen -- be certain that you are eligible to vote by checking with your Board of Elections and then be certain you vote when the time comes.

Red Chiefs Decry Protection in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Wladyslaw Gomulka, the Communist chief of Poland, has protested to the State Department about too much security protection here, the Police Department announced today.

At the same time, leaders of European refugee groups were complaining about the guards also—for different reason.

Gomulka, one of the top Communist leaders here for the United Nations meet, asked the State Department to reduce the number of police assigned to him.

Refugee leaders bitterly complained against what they called police overzeal in protecting Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and the satellite leaders.

Poisonous Plants

- Cancer Defense
- Color-blind Test

Q. Are any plants or flowers commonly found in gardens poisonous?

A. Only a few garden plants are harmful when eaten. Included among the harmful ones are plants of the Solanaceae family, rhododendrons, mountain laurel, Christmas rose, and monkshood. The seeds and juice of oleander are very poisonous, as are many other plants of the Apocynaceae family.

Q. Does the body "put up a fight" or build any defense against cancer?

A. Two things are involved in the disease which we know as cancer—the tumor and the victim's reaction to the tumor. The cancer lesion tends to grow and invade normal body tissue, while the person's body resists to varying degrees. If the body wins the battle all is well. If the tumor wins, the cancerous process goes on until the end. Much is known about tumors, how they grow and how they destroy tissue, but not much has been learned about the body's power to resist cancer. Researchers are studying this phase of cancer in their search for better methods of treatment. More knowledge along these lines may supply the answer to the cancer problem.

Q. Are there ways to "fool" the color-blind test given to armed service inductees?

A. No. The test usually given for color blindness, in which the person being tested views a series of color plates (such as the Ishihara series), is failed by almost all subjects with any degree of red-green color deficiency. 11 Pacers Ready For Fabulous Jug

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP)—Handicappers of 11 of the nation's top 3-year-old pacers made last minute preparations today for the 15th annual running of the Little Brown Jug.

The $66,510.89 pacing classic goes Thursday, with 2 p.m. EST the probable starting time for the first heat. Racing will continue at approximately hourly intervals until one horse wins two heats. If different horses win the first three dashes, those three will settle the issue in a finale mile.

The first heat lineups were drawn Thursday, with expected favorite Bullet Hanover winning the No. 4 position. Bullet, who topped 2-year-olds last year with a 1:57 mile, will be after his first win on a half-mile track. But trainer-driver Johnny Simpson insists that the Delaware County track will not hinder the flash.

Major Goose drew the rail position.

Rosary Here Friday Night

Dade and Thomas Back at Practice

The Crusaders of Columbus Rosary will furnish the football opposition for the Circleville Tigers here Friday night.

Rosary, always a strong opponent, is bolstered by several lettermen from a team last year which won eight, lost none and tied one.

The lone deadlock, a 20-20 score, was the game with Circleville. It was one of the most exciting and explosive tests played here in several years.

Just as they did last year, the Crusaders will have a solid crop of veterans although they did lose 10 regulars from last season, including All-Franklin County backs Jim Long and Shawn Doherty.

CIRCLEVILLE hopes received a great boost yesterday when it was learned that Halfback Garold Dade was given the doctor's OK to resume football. The speedy and elusive sophomore has been sidelined with a head injury since early season practice.

Another turn for the better also came yesterday as Tackle Clesson Thomas took part in contact work for the first time in more than two weeks due to a leg bruise.

Coach Carl Benhase said both boys may be ready for action Friday night to help give the Tigers a lift following last week's 32-0 loss to Athens.

The Tigers worked overtime Monday and yesterday in an effort to be well-prepared Friday.

Early Monday Loop Shows Deadlock

Circle "D" Recreation won three games in the Early Monday Night bowling league here to move into a first place deadlock with Easterday's Sohio Service which also captured three victories.

General Electric was another three-game winner which helped the Lamp Planters to get a hold on second place.

Many pins were spilled at the Circle "D" lanes as John Gren-wich of Moore's Store rolled a 223 single and a 555 series. Don Valentine had a 202 single and Chet Phillips a 207. Both toss for Circle "D".

Ed Reynolds of Easterday's racked high series with 560 pins. Pete Noble of Circleville Building Supply had a 203 game and a 554 series.

Grid Films Slated At High School

Films of the Circleville football games with Athens and Paint Valley will be shown at the local high school instead of Benny's Restaurant as previously planned.

Coach Carl Benhase said the showing will be in room 210, starting 7 p.m. Thursday. The public is invited.

AP Guesspert Picks Winners On College Grid

.800 Pct. Correct Selections Made on Last Week's Card

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP)—Traditionally, this is the first day of fall. But the fall you get on the calendar is nothing like the fall you can get trying to pick football winners.

(Last week's figures: 28 winners, 7 losers, .800).

Mississippi over Kentucky: The Kentuckian have nothing to compare with the Jake Gibbs to Johnny Brewer battery.

Syracuse over Boston University: Last year, en route to their national championship Syracuse won this game 46-0. It could be as much this time.

Washington over Idaho: Little more than a workout for the Washington Rose Bowl kings.

Alabama over Tulane: Tulane last week defeated California. Now that Alabama has defeated Georgia it must be considered a Southeast Conference title threat.

Michigan State over Pittsburgh: This one is on TV and it should be worth seeing. The Spartans' crop of sophomores reputed to be the best in the big ten.

Elsewhere: Kansas over Kansas State; Purdue over UCLA; Wake Forest over Clemson; Iowa over Oregon State; Nebraska over Minnesota; Oklahoma over North western; Texas over Maryland; Georgia Tech over Rice; Columbia over Brown.

Washington State over Denver, Iowa State over Detroit, Mississippi Southern over Hardin-Simmons, San Jose over Brigham Young.

Saturday EAST: Army over Boston College, Cornell over Colgate, Dartmouth over New Hampshire, Harvard over Holy Cross, Lehigh over Delaware, Navy over Villanova, Pennsylvania over Lafayette, Rutgers over Princeton, Yale over Connecticut, VMI over Buffalo.

SOUTH: Auburn over Tennessee, Florida over Florida State, the Citadel over George Washington, North Carolina over North Carolina State, South Carolina over Duke, Georgia over Vanderbilt, Virginia Tech over West Virginia, Mississippi State over Houston, William & Mary over Virginia, Wofford over Davidson, Texas.

MIDWEST: Cincinnati over Dayton, Michigan over Oregon, Missouri over Oklahoma State, Notre Dame over California, Wichita over Xavier, Ohio State over Southern Methodist.

SOUTHWEST Arkansas over Tulsa, Baylor over Colorado, North Texas State over Texas Western, Texas A & M over Texas Tech, Arizona State over West Virginia, Arizona over Utah, College of Pacific over Marquette, Southern California over TCU, Wisconsin over Stanford, Wyoming over New Mexico.

FAR WEST: Air Force over Colorado State University, Arizona over Utah, College of Pacific over Marquette, Southern California over TCU, Wisconsin over Stanford, Wyoming over New Mexico.

Bucks Seem Better, Faster, But Must Play Some Sophs

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series on the major football teams in the Midwest. Others will follow on this page daily.

By WALTER JOHNS

COLUMBUS, O. — Football still remains king in this capital city of the Buckeye state and whether Woody Hayes can turn out a winning team or not, Ohio State's big horseshoe stadium will be filled Saturday after Saturday.

Right now, only 5,000 of 400,000 available seats are still to be peddled as Hayes, now dean of Big Ten coaches, prepares his 1960 Bucks, a "better team" than last year, for the opener with Southern Methodist September 24.

Woody, whose rhu-barbs with sports writers and even baseball players over the years have made him one of the most controversial figures in big-time coaching, has a rebuilding job, in a way, although he points out, surprisingly, "we didn't lose much that'll hurt us."

Woody's possession football, still with him, will be widened a bit this year, but, as he says, "it won't be as wide open as you saw here today." The Buckeye coach was referring to the day's practice in which passes were being thrown all over the place. Woody feels he has a good quarterback this year in Tom Matte, a reformed halfback, who completed 55 per cent of his throws last year and with only one interception.

Matte, son of a former pro hockey star, gives the Bucks a good one-two punch in that hit also can run with the ball.

The 1959 Bucks, a disappointing squad, could win only three games while losing five and tying one. But only 10 lettermen were lost, with 22 returning, and the 1960 edition should be even better.

"Our overall speed will be a big improvement," Woody explains, as he points out that the 1960 Bucks will be a light team as Big Ten editions go. "Sophs will figure prominently in our plans," he adds, "and we may go with as high as seven or nine of them on the first two teams."

Like two other schools in the Big Ten, the Buckeyes are loaded with former high school fullbacks. In fact, there are 19 of them on the roster. All the centers are former fullbacks and strangely, the fullback Bob Ferguson, is a former halfback.

Woody tells you that "fullbacks are the best football players" and also that "I didn't promise one of them that he'd be a fullback at Ohio State."

The Bucks will have a defensive unit called the "Bucks" and an offensive team listed as "Red No. 1."

On offense the 1960 Buckeyes will line up with Paul Martin and the discus thrower, soph Bob Middleton, at the ends, Bob Vogel or Daryl Sanders, both sophs, and Jim Tyrer (250 pounds) at the tackles; Oscar Hauer and Gabe Hartman at the guards and Bill Armstrong, a soph and state wrestling champ, at center.

On defense the Hayes machine will feature Tom Perdue, labeled a "darn good end" by Woody, and Sam Tidmore at the wings; Alan Fiers and George Tolford at the tackles; Mike Ingram, the team's No. 1 all-around player, and Gary Moeller, a soph, at the guards, and Jim Lindner at center.

In the defensive backfield are, Ron Houck at quarter, Jim Herbstreit (158 pounds) and Bill Wentz, a fifth-year man, at the halves and Roger Detrick at full.

Woody picked out Matte, Ingram, Ferguson and Tyrer as "my most outstanding players."

Perdue, the end, is an outfielder in baseball and has received offers of as high as $25,000 to play pro baseball, but so far he has turned it down.

The 1960 Bucks have 57 home state boys on the 68-man squad. Woody spent part of the summer at a coaching school at Gunnison, Colo.

The Buckeye schedule lists Southern Methodist, Southern California, Illinois, Purdue, Wisconsin, Michigan State, Indiana, Iowa and Michigan in order.

CHICAGO (AP)—Ernest Burford of Memphis puts his knock-out power against the fancy boxing of Ace Armstrong, Elizabeth, N. J., in a middleweight bout to night in Chicago Stadium.

The 10-rounder will be televised (9 p.m. EST) and scored under the five-point must system.

Burford, 25, a pro since 1956 has scored 13 knockouts in winning 23 of 30 starts. He will be making his first main appearance in Chicago Stadium.

Armstrong, 28, has been in the pro ranks since 1955. He has won 18 of 20 fights with one knockout.

Duffy, Others Optimistic About MSU Grid Picture

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series on the major football teams in the Midwest. Others will follow on this page daily.

By WALTER JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor
EAST LANSING, Mich. — Hugh (Duffy) Daugherty, the Irish humorist who spends most of his time coaching the Michigan State football team, exudes optimism when he talks about his Spartans, and, as he says, "we never get out the crying towel at Michigan State."

So, in a way, it's no wonder that the Spartans are being picked (at least by the two dozen Skywriters) as the top team in the Big Ten this year, a billing, incidentally, which changes Duffy, the optimist, into the pessimist.

After a week start last year, the Spartans came on and finished with a rush, winding up 5-4, and this, plus the return of 19 lettermen, a flock of fantastically-fast backs and Duffy's optimism, projects the East Lansing horde into one of the favorite roles, if not the favorite role, for the Western Conference championship.

Both in an off-the-field interview and an on-the-field diagnosis with his players listening in, the Irish of Michigan State takes the optimistic view, and, with superlatives lists the "great" ones on his team.

"I think we're going to have a very fine team," he says, "better than last year. We have great backs, fine overall depth in the backfield, fine offensive ends and the greatest group of soph linemen I've seen here."

"I feel that I get carried away by my enthusiasm. I lose sight of the fact that others do good things and have fine athletes. But other schools keep it a secret, and I broadcast it. They pick us up there all the time. Fortunately, our players graduate."

Duffy continues:
"We have 22 good men, a defense team and an offensive team. If we receive I suppose we'll start the offensive team—which I suppose is logical."

And he goes on and on:
"Wayne Fontes (No. 2 right end) is as fine a pass receiver as you'll find in the Big Ten this year. Herb Adderley (left half) is as good as any halfback in the Conference and could be the best all-around player in the Conference. Don Stewart (No. 2 right half) is the coaches' football player. Dave Manders (center) is a great blocker."

Duffy says the Spartan strength lies in the backs and ends but feels that inexperience in the interior line is the big question mark. He has so many fast backs (they run the century in 9.8 to 10 seconds flat) that he moved several backs into the line. Five of the top guards were backs.

Duffy pooh-poohs the value of the quarterback as being indispensable.

"The line is the important part of the football team," he says. "The tackles and guards are the heart of any team. There's never been a great football team without a good line. We expect more of our guards than any football team in the U. S. Anybody can carry the football. It only weighs 14 ounces."

Only five lettermen are available from tackle to tackle so five sophos will be utilized here. And this is the key to the Spartan hopes.

Jim Bobbitt and Pete Kakela are the left tackles. Duffy met Bobbitt, a soph, in Berchtesgaden, Germany, while on a coaching clinic three years ago and induced him to come to Michigan State. Kakela is the son of a former Minnesota player who was a teammate with Biggie Munn, now the Spartan athletic director.

Mickey Walker and Ed Budle are the right tackles. At the guards are George Azar, one of the top sophos, and Howard Mudd, another soph. Under them are Mike Biondo, who played only two minutes last year, and Fred Boylen.

Veterans are at the ends in Fred Arbanas, 6'3" tall, and Art Brandstatter. A spectacular end is Ernie Clark, soph who has a 11 1/4" hand span and catches the football with one hand.

Manders, cousin of the Manders' brothers who starred at Minnesota, is the center, with Dave Behrman, who has knocked many pounds off his 275-pound frame, No. 2.

Tommy Wilson is the quarterback, and, according to Duffy, "he gets the job done." Wilson suffered a knee injury in his soph year which has set him back a bit.

The halfbacks are among the best in the Conference. They are Adderly and Gary Ballman, both speed demons. Ballman is a left-handed passer.

Carl Charon, who broke his ankle last year, is the fullback with Ron Hatcher No. 2.

The Spartans have a rugged schedule at the start, opening with Pittsburgh and then following with Michigan, Iowa, Notre Dame, Indiana, Ohio State, Purdue, Northwestern and Detroit.

Major Polio Scare Doubled

Ohio's Cool Weather To Bring Decline

COUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The danger of a major polio outbreak in Ohio this year appears to have passed, a State Health Department official says.

Dr. Winslow J. Bashe chief of the department's Division of Communicable Diseases, said that, with arrival of cooler weather, the number of reported cases should start to decline in the next few weeks.

So far this year Ohio has had 64 cases, compared with 172 at this point last year and 182 in 1958. There have been three deaths in 1960. In 1953 and 1954, last two full years before Salk vaccine results were announced, Ohio had more than 2,000 polio cases annually.

Carroll and Huron counties reported their first cases last week, both paralytic type with one victim not vaccinated and the vaccination status of the Huron patient unknown.

There also were reports from Cuyahoga (two paralytic, one not vaccinated, one partial), Scioto (two paralytic and not vaccinated and one non-paralytic and also not vaccinated), Franklin (one non-paralytic, vaccinated), Montgomery (one paralytic, vaccinated) and Portage (one non-paralytic vaccinated, and the official report of a death received unofficially by the State Health Department two weeks ago).

James J. Papai, who maintains the polio records for Dr. Bashe's division, said that the county totals to date are:

Cuyahoga 8, Scioto 5, Franklin 4, Licking 4, Van Wert 4, Portage 3 (one death), Medina 3 (two deaths), Stark 3, Lucas 3, Muskingum 3, Trumbull 3, Clark 3, Montgomery 2, Erie 2, Jefferson 1, Knox 1, Washington 1, Seneca 1, Carroll 1, Huron 1, Guernsey 1, Lake 1, Clermont 1, Logan 1, Butler 1, Fayette 1, Warren 1, and Ross 1.

Church Parking Lot Is Ruled Tax Exempt

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A parking lot sometimes is necessary for proper use of a church these days, the State Board of Tax Appeals has decided.

The decision came on an appeal of Zion Evangelical United Brethren Church in Perry Twp. (Whipple Street), just outside Canton.

The board said local traffic conditions made an automobile parking lot not only a convenience but a necessity for proper use of the church building as a house of public worship. There, it ruled, the lot is exempt from property taxes for the 1960 tax year.

Testimony by Toxicologist Due in Sleeping Beauty Trial

CLEVELAND (AP)—A toxicologist was called to testify today in the juvenile court trial of Mrs. Lillian Fratanio, accused of drugging her "sleeping beauty" daughters—two little girls whose prolonged comas had puzzled medical men.

Asst. Cuyahoga County Prosecutor Thomas Osborne planned to call Dr. Irving Sunshine, toxicologist at the coroner's office, where the tests were made that ended the mystery surrounding the case of Venita, 5, and Bernadette Fratanio, 3. Bernadette had lived in a state of virtual suspended animation for nearly a year before it was found that someone had been feeding her barbiturates.

Thousands of dollars had been spent trying to trace the cause of Bernadette's illness even before Venita joined her at the hospital July 10.

Doctors on the staff at Mount Sinai Hospital testified Tuesday about an Aug. 6 meeting at which plans were made to take blood samples for barbiturate tests without Mrs. Fratanio's knowledge. The first test was taken that night after Bernadette dropped into a deep coma, an intern testified.

Close records were kept on subsequent visits by the children's attractive 29-year-old mother. Asked why such records were kept, Dr. Bienvenido Absamis told the juvenile court jury it was decided to "correlate the presence of Mrs. Fratanio with the drawing of blood (for barbiturate tests).

DAR Promotes Constitution

Celebration Set For 173rd Birthday

Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, urges all Pickaway County to observe the celebration of the U. S. Constitution Week, this week.

If you are interested in autographs, you will find two of the down town places who will display the famous signatures of the 39 signers of the Constitution of the United States affixed to the document which is the fundamental law of our land.

The displays are the offerings of the local chapter, which has chosen this method to publicize Constitution Week.

These documents will be displayed in the windows of the Hamilton Store and the window of the Third National Bank.

This year marks the 173rd anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution by the National Convention. Fifty-five delegates from 12 states deliberated the spring and summer of 1787 on the creation of a new government. Only 39 summoned enough faith in the new instrument to sign.

Who were the men who signed and their station in life. Eight had signed the Declaration of Independence. Eight helped to draw up State Constitutions. Seven had served as chief executives in their own states, 21 had fought in the Revolution, 39 served in the Continental Congress and all knew the workings of English Colonial policies and the parliamentary system.
